

Capitol Connection Q&A for Contractors
By Shauna Krause, President, Capitol Services, Inc.

Failure is just part of the learning process, and CA contractor licensing exams are almost unlimited in getting applicants to that passing grade. Okay, there is a time limit. 'Sisters' can't always share equally and changing your business entity is limited too...

Q: We have a General contractor license in Nevada. We have one employee who qualifies both the Trade and the CMS portions of the license. One of our other companies is applying for a specialty license with one of its employees as the Trade Qualifier. He is a competent field employee but is concerned about taking the CMS exam. Can we use the employee who is already qualifying the General license as the CMS Qualifier for the new specialty license? Both companies are owned by the same Parent entity.

A: Nevada will only allow companies to share a Qualifying Individual if either that person owns at least 25% of each company, OR if one licensee owns at least 25% of the other licensee. "Sister" companies do not meet the requirement for sharing a Qualifying Individual.

Q: I have a pending application with the CSLB. I passed the Law exam but I have failed the Trade exam twice. How many times am I allowed to re-take it? I know some States only allow you three times.

A: California allows you take the exam as many times as you need to pass within 18 months. There is a waiting period of three weeks before you can re-schedule once you have failed.

Q: I have a Sole Proprietor license with a "doing business as" or dba name. I also have an Limited Liability Company (LLC) set up with the same business name. I signed a large contract recently and my CPA is recommending that I put my license under the LLC before I start the work. What do I need to do to accomplish this? And can it be done by next week when I'm supposed to start work?

A: First of all, it is highly unlikely and close to impossible to have the license in the name of the LLC by next week. You are required to apply for a "new" license (although the number can be transferred under certain circumstances) in the full name of the LLC and listing all of its Members/Managers. You are also required to obtain new bonds for the LLC as bonds are not transferrable, show proof of liability insurance, and show proof of Worker's Compensation insurance if the LLC has CA employees. That process usually takes several weeks.

While knowledge is power, knowing where to go for the answers is half the battle. ## INTRODUCTION

When working with asphalt, the material may sometimes be transferred from a kettle into a bucket or other type of container to make the transportation of the material easier. Buckets can make it easier to mop or spread the material on small areas. Due to the temperatures and sticky nature of the material involved, employees who use buckets and other containers full of asphalt could potentially be exposed to harm. Following the safe work practices presented in this lesson will help ensure employee safety.

HAZARDS

When transferring or carry asphalt into buckets or other containers from a kettle, employees could potentially be exposed to the following hazards:

- Burns
- Fire (if asphalt is heated to or beyond the flash point)
- Skin irritation or damage
- Eye irritation or damage
- Respiratory irritation or damage
- Repetitive motion injuries
- Slips, trips, and falls

PERSONAL PROTECTIVE EQUIPMENT

Employees should wear the appropriate personal protective equipment, which may include:

- Safety glasses or goggles
- Reflective vest, jacket, or clothing such as pants and shirts
- Face shield (if working near the kettle)
- Gloves (Gloves that are rated asphalt)
- Steel-Toed boots or boots specifically made for working with asphalt
- Cotton shirts with long sleeves
- Long pants
- Hard hat
- Respirators (if engineering controls and work practices are ineffective at keeping asphalt fume exposure below NIOSH's recommended exposure limits of 5 mg/m<sup>3</sup>, or state or federal standards)

FIRST AID

In the event of that hot asphalt gets on the skin, employees should do the following:

- Cool with asphalt by immediately by putting the affected area under cold water. Running water should last for a minimum of 20 minutes. You can use ice or cold packs if running water is not available.
- Seek immediate medical attention at the nearest medical facility if the burn is severe.
- Do NOT cover the burned area.
- Do NOT attempt to pull the asphalt from the skin.

ASPHALT: TRANSFER BUCKETS SAFETY

SAFE WORK PRACTICES

Before filling or transporting asphalt in buckets or other containers, employees should do the following:

- Inspect all provided PPE for damage. Report damaged PPE to your supervisor. Do NOT wear damaged PPE.
- Ensure that buckets are made of approved materials such as No. 24 gauge or heavier sheet steel with a metal bail of 1/4-inch diameter or larger material. Do NOT use buckets that are not made of approved materials.
- Inspect the bucket or other container for damage. Report damaged buckets and containers to your supervisor. Do NOT use damaged buckets and containers.
- Inspect the pumping pipe for damage. Report damaged pipes to your supervisor. Do NOT use damaged pipes to move asphalt into buckets or other containers.
- Ensure hoisting frames and equipment are installed in accordance with the manufacturer's instructions (if applicable).
- Check that buckets or other containers are properly secured and covered prior to hoisting.

When filling and transporting asphalt in buckets, employees should do the following:

- Ensure that no one is under a bucket or other container of asphalt as it is being hoisted.
- Confirm that the pumping pipe is placed directly in the bucket (if applicable).
- Make sure that the bucket is filled no more than 4 inches from the top.
- Verify that open containers used for transporting asphalt are not filled beyond 75 percent capacity.
- Ensure that coworkers are alerted to the fact that you are carrying hot asphalt by yelling "HOT."
- Practice proper ergonomics when lifting the buckets as the buckets can be very heavy. It is recommended that employees only carry one bucket at a time to reduce the chances of spilling. If you are working on a roof having a slope ratio of 6:12 or steeper, OSHA requires that only one bucket of asphalt is carried at a time.
- Make sure that buckets are poured carefully with one hand holding it firmly by the bottom.
- Be aware of the placement of buckets and other containers containing asphalt.
- Make sure that buckets or other containers are placed on a flat, level resting surface.
- If a bucket becomes stuck, it is recommended that you twist the bail back and forth until it becomes loose.
- Ensure that there is at least one ABC type fire extinguisher in the area where asphalt work is being conducted. Size of the extinguisher may vary between states.
- Immediately report asphalt getting on the skin to your supervisor. Seek immediate medical attention for asphalt burns.

When filling and transporting asphalt in buckets or other containers, employees should NOT do the following:

- Do NOT leave a pumping pipe unattended while filling operations are taking place.
- Do NOT walk under a bucket or container that is being hoisted.
- Do NOT carry a bucket of asphalt while climbing a ladder.
- Do NOT look directly into a bucket or other container when filling.
- Do NOT jerk the bucket if it has become stuck to the resting surface.
- Do NOT eat, drink, smoke, or apply cosmetics (including lip balm) while working around buckets and other containers filled with asphalt.

CONCLUSION

Transferring asphalt into a bucket or other container can be a hazardous task. Employees filling and transporting buckets or other containers could potential be burned, experience repetitive motion injuries, etc. By following the safe work practices presented in this lesson, employees can help minimize their chances of an accident occurring when filling and transporting buckets filled with asphalt.
