Capitol Connection Q&A for Contractors

Week of 4/29/2024

By Shauna Krause, President, Capitol Services, Inc.

I start by ‘wrecking’ a contractor’s misconception, but we all learn from the answer. Another inquiry illustrates who can, and who can’t, sign for a corporate contractor and I find a way to give new ‘life’ to an RME whose status has changed...

Q: We currently have a “C-21” (Demolition) license and want to add the HAZ and Asbestos certifications to our license. Can we have a different employee take the exams for the HAZ and Asbestos certifications, or does it have to be the current Responsible Managing Officer (RMO)?

A: The individual must be an existing Qualifier holding a classification on the license they are adding it to. The HAZ and ASB certifications are not stand alone certifications.

Q: We have an incorporated General contractor’s license. When reviewing our list of Officers we saw that our previous “Board Chair” was on there listed as an Officer. We dissociated her when she left our Board of Directors, however we weren’t sure if we needed to add the current Board Chair to our license or not. I couldn’t find anything that said it was required to have that particular position on the license. Do you have any guidance there?

A: The CSLB’s rule is Corporations are only required to list their President, Secretary, and Treasurer on the contractor’s license. Any additional Officers that you have are optional. If you want them to have signing authority for the license and be able to communicate with the CSLB, you will want to add them.

Q: We obtained our license about seven years ago with a Responsible Managing Employee (RME) who went through the testing and fingerprinting for our Company license. As you know, you helped us with putting one of our Officers on the license as the RMO, replacing our RME, and he was able to waive the testing requirement. The prior RME is still with our company but he is wondering if there is a way for him to keep his “license” active.

A: Your previous RME can obtain a sole owner license, or he can attach it to a corporation or LLC. From the date of his disassociation from your company, he has five years to attach his qualification to a license without having to re-test.

Q: As you aware, I passed my CA exams earlier this week and as soon as I provide the Qualifier bond I will be added to our Company license. I just noticed that you also handle Nevada. Can I apply for reciprocity and do the same thing on our Nevada license?

A: Nevada requires that you have been actively licensed as the Qualifying Individual for the previous four years in a reciprocal State. We can certainly do the same process in Nevada, but you will be required to document your experience and take and pass both the Law and Business exams.

While knowledge is power, knowing where to go for the answers is half the battle. INTRODUCTION

Buffing and polishing metal is a task that can easily become dangerous if the correct techniques and safety equipment are not used. Included in this lesson are safety guidelines that can be applied to help protect yourself and those around you when performing this task.

PERSONAL PROTECTIVE EQUIPMENT

Before starting, you must be sure that you are wearing the proper safety equipment, which includes:

- Sturdy gloves and boots to protect your extremities.
- Safety glasses or goggles, and a face shield.
- Respiratory protection to protect yourself from small particles and possible vapors.

In addition to that:

- Loose hair should be tightly secured.
- Loose or flowy clothing should not be worn.
- Necklaces, ties, and bracelets or watches must be removed.
- Barrier cream can be worn if available to protect skin.

POLISHING LATHES

Polishing lathes (or buffing wheels) rotate at remarkable speeds and will cause serious injury if you are not careful. After you are wearing the proper attire, the other necessary component for staying safe is making sure you use safe work techniques and apply common sense to the task.

- Do not attempt to operate a buffing wheel or polishing lathe unless you are familiar with how to use it and have been authorized to do so.
- Be especially careful to never touch any spinning part of the lathe.
- Never remove any guards in order to have better access to the cloth wheel, or “mop.”
- Never introduce the work piece to the “unsafe” portion, or top part of the wheel.
- Grip the work piece firmly and use a wide stance when working.
- Stay out of the “danger zone,” or the area where the work piece would be thrown if it were to be caught on the wheel.
- Regular housekeeping should be done as metal particles and pieces of the mop and polishes tend to collect on the floor.

BUFFING AND POLISHING METALS

POLISHING AGENTS

- Some polishing agents may be flammable and should not be exposed to flames or sparks.
- Do not mix polishing agents.
- All chemicals should be stored in a dry, safe place.
- If any polishing agent or particles happen to get in your eyes, flush at the nearest eyewash station and be careful not to rub, as that will make the irritation worse.

CONCLUSION

Keep in mind that large quantities of ANY metal is hazardous to the body, so try to keep your exposure to a minimum regardless of the kind of metal you are working with. The hazards associated with buffing and polishing metal will be greatly reduced as the above safe work practices are observed.
